Componibili Modular System

1967

Produced by Kartell,
Milan, Italy

The design idea of the Componibili Modular System – renowned as icon of the 1960s – is the elementary and resistant vertical stacking of single modular elements which, by means of an easy joint, form super-functional containers.

The containers are ‘silent protagonists’ of everyday life. They were designed using a process of geometrical simplification to obtain simple shapes such as parallelepipeds or cylinders. Simple holes replace the handles. The Componibili Modular System has been designed to meet different needs in any house interior. Entirely made out of Acrylonitrile-Butadiene-Styrene, which is an opaque plastic, they are produced in different sizes and shapes, which can be piled up, placed on wheels or on the ground, with a sliding or swing door. Flexible and functional, the Componibili Modular System defied time. In fact, this furniture has been sought-after and sold for more than forty years.
