Rethinking Life at the Margins

Edited by Michele Lancione, Routledge (2016)

'This excellent collection brings a new focus to an enduring and vital question: how is urban marginality produced, lived and contested? [...] An important contribution to debates on urban life and inequality' Colin McFarlane, Durham University, UK

'This impressive volume, with its masterful introduction, is illuminating and essential reading for urbanists determined to rethink and remake the city anew.' Edgar Pieterse, University of Cape Town, South Africa

Rethinking Life at the Margins

The Assemblage of Contexts, Subjects and Politics

Edited by Michele Lancione

Experimenting with new ways of looking at the contexts, subjects, processes and multiple political stances that make up life at the margins, this book provides a novel source for a critical rethinking of marginalisation. Drawing on post-colonialism and critical assemblage thinking, the rich ethnographic works presented in the book trace the assemblage of marginality in multiple case-studies encompassing the Global North and South. These works are united by the approach developed in the book, characterised by the refusal of a priori definitions and by a post-human and grounded take on the assemblage of life. The result is a nuanced attention to the potential expressed by everyday articulations and a commitment to produce an processual, vitalist and non-normative cultural politics of the margins. The reader will find in this book a unique challenge to accepted and authoritative thinking and new insights to research life at the margins.
